

New surveys about planning for the future for people living with mesothelioma and their families

The Mesothelioma UK Research Centre are running a research project which might be of interest to you.

The project aims to find out about people's experiences of planning ahead when you are living with mesothelioma or are supporting a relative (or close friend).

We aim to find out what helps people to plan, and what hinders, and any preferences that people have for the last days. You don't have to have any experience of planning to take part, as we want to find out about everyone's experiences.

The surveys are OPEN and we are inviting people to take part!

The QR code on the left opens our Taking part in a research study webpage to access the information sheet and links to the surveys.
