

Erica Montefiori received her Master degree in 2015 from the university of Pisa and joined MultiSim in May 2016 as research assistant. Working on MultiSim, EM developed a broad expertise, spanning from multibody dynamics and musculoskeletal modelling to human movement and gait analysis. She also gained excellent knowledge of medical imaging techniques that support the development of subject-specific modelling approaches. Erica has co-authored 5 published papers and 2 more are under review and is expecting to submit her PhD thesis as a staff candidate in summer 2019. In MultiSim2, EM will improve the modelling of the muscle within the MSK model, further expand her knowledge into the multi-scale aspects of the project, and gain new expertise in the pre-clinical applications by supporting the mouse model development.

Gait analysis data

MRI data

Dynamic simulations of gait

Inverse Kinematics

Inverse Dynamics

Static Optimisation

Joint reaction analysis

OpenSim

Model personalisation

Identification of the joint axes based on joint morphology

Identification of the muscle line of action from the muscle segmentation

Individual muscle volume allows to personalise muscle parameters such as maximal isometric force
