

Critical Disability Studies Research

at The University of Sheffield

Disability
Matters

Disability Matters. A major new six year pan-national programme of disability, health and science research, funded by the Wellcome Trust.

Web: <https://www.sheffield.ac.uk/ihuman/disability-matters>

Twitter: @DisMatters

Contact Dan Goodley: d.goodley@sheffield.ac.uk

Humanising Healthcare. A co-produced research project dedicated to finding and sharing healthcare practices that enhance the lives of people with learning disabilities.

Web: <https://sites.google.com/sheffield.ac.uk/esrchumanisinghealthcare/home>

Twitter: @ESRCHumanHealth

Contact Dan Goodley: d.goodley@sheffield.ac.uk

Autistic adults' experiences of diagnostic assessment. A joint project co-lead by The University of Sheffield and Sheffield Hallam University, with 10 autistic co-researchers from a community group.

Contact Harriet Cameron: h.cameron@sheffield.ac.uk

Animating Inclusion.

A project animating the findings of recent inquiry exploring D/deaf people's experiences of suspense in film.

Contact Ryan Bramley:

r.bramley@sheffield.ac.uk

IPS Beyond SMI. Led by The University of Strathclyde - NIHR funded applied research to develop co-produced learnings, policy guidance and resources to support the development of Individual Placement and Support (IPS) and Supported Employment in population groups and settings beyond severe mental illness (SMI) illness (SMI). Web: <https://www.ipsbeyondsmi.org>

Contact Katherine Runswick-Cole: k.runswick-cole@sheffield.ac.uk

Critical Disability Studies Research

at The University of Sheffield

Tired of Spinning Plates? An exploration of the mental health of older carers/adults of people with learning disabilities (NIHR, HSDR). A coproduced project about carers of adults with learning disabilities' mental health and wellbeing.

Web: <https://sites.google.com/sheffield.ac.uk/tiredofspinningplates/home>

Twitter @SpinPlatesCare

Contact Martina Smith: martina.smith@sheffield.ac.uk

Promoting anti-racist and anti-disablist research cultures. A project exploring anti-oppressive research cultures.

Contact Antonios Ktenidis:

antonios.ktenidis@sheffield.ac.uk

TAS. An interdisciplinary one year pump priming project funded by UKRI TAS Hub exploring trustworthy autonomous systems with disabled young people utilising co-production and makerspace methods.

Contact Lauren White: i.e.white@sheffield.ac.uk

Crippling Breath.

A new 5-year Wellcome Trust Discovery Award exploring a new cultural politics of respiration.

Twitter: @CripplingBreath

Contact Kirsty Liddiard:

k.liddiard@sheffield.ac.uk

What about me? People with learning disabilities living on the edges of support: What is it like and what needs to change? A 22 month project led by The university of Sheffield with collaborators from Sheffield voices, Sunderland People First, Manchester Metropolitan University and others.

Contact Harriet Cameron: h.cameron@sheffield.ac.uk

Medication and my mental health. Led by Manchester Metropolitan University, a co-produced project about mental health medication in the lives of people with learning disabilities.

Twitter: @MedMentalHealth

Contact Katherine Runswick-Cole: k.runswick-cole@sheffield.ac.uk

Medications
And My Mental Health

