1. GENERAL

QA is one of my strengths and I mention it at the start. I continue to validate and revalidate law degrees across the UK. I cannot refer to my visitorships on behalf of the Joint Academic Stage Board, now abolished, except to say that my most recent visits on its behalf were to the first ever JD in the UK (at a Russell Group University) and to a validation and revalidation at a Russell Group West Midlands University. I continue to deal with (re)validations as an External panel member.. My most recent six were at a Russell Group university (UG and PGT), at a post-92 university (PGT), four times at a private Law School (levels 3-7), at a 'new new' university on the establishment of its London campus (transfer of LLB from a closing college to the new campus) and at an even newer University in the SW for preparation for a PGT degree/

In May 2012 I became a member of the newly established three-person Central Examinations Review Panel for the Bar Standards Board in respect of the Bar Professional Training Course. This role is now performed by a Visitor.

I have over the years brought in £2M p.a. from overseas recruitment, enough for 40 lecturers' inc. on-costs.

I have a newly blossoming career in the media including an article on 30th anniversary of The Battle for Orgreave, 18 June 2014. I have done interviews with Radio5Live and BBC Radio Sheffield (including 'Eastern Air') on the National Minimum/Living Wage.

I was very pleased to be nominated by the Students' Union in 2014 to be the best personal tutor in the University. I was a runner up.

MEMBERSHIP OF LEARNED SOCIETIES

Association of Law Teachers for many years (Committee member and member of the Policy Subcommittee from 2001, vice-chair 2003-04, Chair 2004-05, Secretary 2013-14, 2014-15, 2015-6, 2016-7, continuing Committee member for many years (with special duty to liaise with the Law Commission), 40th Annual Conference organiser for 'Enhancing the Student Experience', Edinburgh, 2005) and of the Upjohn Lecture (Prof. Linda Mulcahy, Birkbeck, on adversarialism in Law Schools); representative of the ALT at meetings over several years with the Society of Legal Scholars, Women Law Professors Network, Socio-Legal Studies Association, Campaign for Access to Legal Education on matters such as the RAE, Training Framework Review, and at receptions for the new SLS presidents; honorary guest at the SLS Conference at Stirling Castle, 2005. Wrote the ALT's REF consultation response in December 2009.

Society of Legal Scholars including attending meetings as alternate and representing the Head of Law at Sheffield: I have also attended meetings of CHULS, the Committee of Heads of University Law Schools vice the Head of School.

(Formerly a member of the Association for Legal and Social Philosophy)

Industrial Law Society: member since 1987; and for some years in the late 2000s joint organiser in the north-east with John McMullen, Prof. of Labour Law, Durham University, ex-Member of ACAS Council, and Head of Employment Law currently of Stone King solicitors and the late Chris Chapman, former Judge of employment tribunals, Deputy Chair of the Central Arbitration Committee, and former member of the Governing Body, Sheffield Hallam University: in 2007-8 there were meetings in Sheffield for the first time and these have continued: with Andrew James, formerly of Thompsons Solicitors now of Slater & Gordon and a fee paid Employment Judge, in charge Since 2019 I have organised the meetings with a solicitor and a Sheffield Hallam Principal Lecturer (previously one of my PhD students). I also attend as many meetings as I can of the ILS in Manchester and Leeds and at the Manchester Industrial Relations Society as well as the Annual Conference, which until 2017 was held at St Catherine's Oxford. During and post-pandemic attendance has been online.

Between 2009 and 2015 I was the Labour Law stream organiser for the Socio-Legal Studies Association, including issuing the call for papers for the Annual Conference (at the Bristol Law School in 2010, Sussex 2011, de Montfort 2012, York 2013, Robert Gordon 2014, Warwick 2015) and arranging the speaking slots.

Member of various research clusters, School of Law, University of Sheffield.

CURRENT APPOINTMENT IN THIS UNIVERSITY

1992	Lecturer and Senior Lecturer (Separate appointment 2003-6 to be Director of Learning and Teaching Development for the Faculty of Law: this work included chairing the monthly meetings of the DLTDs, awarding L+T Development Grants). I was instrumental in securing HEFCE money (£4,850,000) for CILASS, the Centre for Inquiry-based Learning in Arts and Social Sciences, a Centre of Excellence in Teaching and Learning (CETL), for the University. The Law School at Sheffield was the sole one which was part of a CETL. I was also visiting professor at the Faculties of Law, Universities of Montpellier and Nimes, 2003 (Anglo-Welsh Criminal Law), teaching 3/4/5 year (separately) students on various aspects of the Law.

PREVIOUS APPOINTMENTS

1977 - 86	Lecturer and Senior Lecturer, Liverpool Local Education Authority
1986 - 92	Senior Lecturer, Leeds Polytechnic
2012 - 13	Employment Law lecturer, University of Manchester (temporary, emergency) (UG)
2022 and 2023	Employment Law module leader, Alliance Manchester Law School (PGT)

A partial autobiography appears in (2000-01) 21 Speaking Out 6. Interviews occur in three issues of CoursesNOW! a Malaysian journal for those intending to go to University (whether in Malaysia or elsewhere). First writing for a newspaper was in the Malaysian Star and websites (at the request of the British Council) on 'How to choose the best UK Law School – for You!'

PhD, M Phil, LLM by research

Internal Examiner and Chair on numerous occasions
(latest one autumn 2018)

Supervisor and External

Topics include trade union power (PhD: sole supervisor), horizontal direct effect of directives in employment law (PhD – joint but in practice sole supervisor), women in employment (PhD – joint supervisor), arbitration as a technique to resolve industrial conflict, corporate killings, domestic violence, drink driving (PhD completed successfully 2014), criminal appeals, self-defence, atypical workers, racial discrimination in England and Germany, Transfer of Undertakings Regulations, consent to sex, excessive use of force, female part-time workers, comparing the law on strikes in the UK and USA.

Recent External Examining of MPhil/PhD theses includes parental leave (Glamorgan), corporate manslaughter (QUB: MPhil), electronic contracts (Derby), age discrimination (Coventry), and in 2015 migrant domestic workers (Middlesex). Most recent externalling includes Nottingham Trent (2016) followed by a staff PhD by Publication by James Hand) at Portsmouth (June 2016: two Externals, other one being Prof. Michael Wynn, Kingston). Last but one (Dec. 2017) PhD was a staff member (Michael Connolly of Portsmouth) at UCL with Prof. Lizzie Barmes, QMUL as the other External. His PhD has been published by Hart, now part of Bloomsbury (2018). Second one in 2018 was Paul Ratcliffe, Surrey, on work performance. His resubmission is due in 2022. Next one was on Therapeutic Jurisprudence, Anna Kawalek, Sheffield Hallam University, December 2018), with the other External being emeritus Professor at NYU who is on Wikipedia, Michael Perlin. Following one was a PhD, second submission, at Nottingham Trent University on HIV and disability: staff candidate; therefore, two Externals, the other one being John O'Leary, APU (2019). Most recent student PhD, Feb. 2020, was a student submission with the other External being Katy Ferris (Nottingham). The most recent staff PhD was Alex Nicholson at Hallam in December 2021, done by publication and with the other External being Prof. Chris Ashford, Northumbria. The most recent student PhD. Autumn 2022, was at Kingston University, outer London (Reflexive regulation versus substantive regulation).

LLM by research

Previous External Examinership includes Stuart Grundman, Central Lancashire, on domestic killings (staff candidate; the other External was Gerry Johnstone, Head of Law, Hull). Last but not one LLM by research externalling (2015) was of a staff candidate at Sheffield Hallam (Peter Smith, law librarian) on legal education. The latest LLM by research was at Nottingham Trent University (2016) on statutory union recognition.

Law Research Paper

Final year undergraduates. Topics include equal pay, battered women who kill, self-defence (more than once), German and Anglo-Welsh law of non-fatal offences, personhood of fetuses etc. I was also the Coordinator for this course (2001-4) as part of my job as Director of Teaching.

MA (Law) dissertations

Many since the degree started e.g. corporate manslaughter, shared parental leave, implied term of mutual trust and confidence, sex crimes, and loss of control.

I used to teach 500+ UG students per year: it was highly exceptional for UG students to obtain a degree without being taught by me (sole ones: direct entry students who had already done Criminal Law and opted not to take Employment Law)

4. PROFESSIONAL AND EXTERNAL STANDING

CURRENT OR PAST PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES include

I have undertaken a 'mini-REF' evaluation at a local HEI (2018) and an outer London one (2019).*

I have written for well over two decades – since before the IRA bomb at South Quay Plaza -- for Sweet & Maxwell's Encyclopedia of Employment Law and was appointed the Deputy Editor in 2012. I became the General Editor in 2015

<http://www.sweetandmaxwell.co.uk/Catalogue/Results.aspx?Nty=1&Ntt=&Ntx=mode+matchallpartial&Ntpc=1&N=4294967220+21&Ntp=1&Ntk=KEYWORD-SEARCH> I also edit the biannual bulletin.

I have manned the University's stand at undergraduate (Singapore, 2004-2014) and both UG and postgraduate (Kuala Lumpur, 2004-14: British Council and private institutions) education exhibitions and scholarships exhibitions (Singapore 2008-2014).

I have visited Colleges in South East Asia several times (articulation agreements and recruitment) (2003, 2004 (twice), 2008 (twice), 2009 (twice), 2010 (twice), 2011 (three times)), 2012 (twice), and 2013 (twice): see also talks below

I have phoned applicants for the School of Law who live in Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, and Thailand as part of the University's 'conversion' regime

I have held webchats on overseas admissions

Reviewer of proposals for books for 4 publishers (including OUP e.g. twice for Andrew Ashworth (former Vinerian Professor at Oxford) and CUP e.g. for ACL Davies, now Dean of Law at Oxford, on Labour Law). I continue to look over book proposals for publishers as well as articles. These remain confidential but the latest (2018-19) two books are for Hart Publishing, now part of Bloomsbury (equality law), Cambridge UP (criminal justice), and Routledge (student textbook).*

Various one-off unpaid consultancies for individuals, companies, and unions. In 2015 I agreed to become a writer for the journals of the Communications Workers Union and the GMB, the boilermakers

Current Developments Editor (and trustee), Liverpool Law Review, until 1985

Bid for EC funds for Law in Sport and bid to EHRC (with Prof. Philip Leith, QUB) for bid on disability; TUOS bid to DWP on aging (DWP decided not to proceed).

Note also Sweet & Maxwell's Encyclopedia of Employment Law (looseleaf) updated four times annually. I took over the parts written by Bob Hepple and have developed new aspects e.g. Employment Tribunals, the history of labour law, the ACAS Arbitration Scheme for Unfair Dismissal and Flexible Working, human rights, Disability Rights Commission, the Commission for Equality and Human Rights, the Low Pay Commission, the statutory recognition procedure, Gangmasters Licensing Agency. Other parts e.g. the Central Arbitration Committee are unrecognisable from how they were when I took over. The latest major revision (mid-2014) is on ACAS's new early conciliation scheme.

"Criminal Law" is a rather academic text within the tradition established in English and criminal theory since the 1960s but it goes beyond that tradition by entering into debates of modern criminal law such as subjectivism versus objectivism, practical reasoning, act theory and distinction between justifications and excuses. For the 8th ed. I added, inter alia, a glossary and chapter summaries. The website is completely rewritten for each edition – see above. For reviews of the 7th ed., see A. Watson (2006) 40 Law Teacher 97 and J. Herring, THES, 26 May 2006.

"Employment Law" (9) is a distance-learning text in ITS's "Definitive Series". It includes questions for discussion.

"Employment Law", previously "Principles of Employment Law", and even more previously "Employment Law", is a book written within the tradition of British Labour Law scholarship and with a historicist, politically-aware and socio-economic tone. It is unashamedly a student text, though used by lecturers and consultants, and has modern appurtenances such as algorithms, summaries and substantial cross-referencing. Both this and the previous text are now well-established.

"Restraint of Trade" is a work which may be likened to Professor Mark Freedland's seminal work "The Contract of Employment" (OUP, 1976: see also his 2003 rewrite). It treats of a realm of common law where judicial activism has been and continues to be of importance. There is an emphasis on policy matters as well as a concentration on recent developments such as "garden leave" clauses and the effect of wrongful dismissal. Research focussed on recent developments and on the law in other jurisdictions. The book is a scholarly one, though practitioners will find much of interest.

"Employment Rights" is a text detailing the jurisdictions of and controversies in employment law in the post-1979 era in an accessible manner with flow-charts, bullet points and the like.

The OUP "Employment Law" is my first jointly written book. It is in the Blackstone series and is in that format. For the third ed. and onwards I have added a glossary and answer plans among other things. For a review of the 2006-7 ed. see A. Bone (2007) 41 Law Teacher 109

Each book is of substantial length and of good quality. They all involve new material and known material put together in a new way. For review, for example, of "Restraint of Trade" see Cambridge Law Journal, July 1997, a periodical of repute.

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

I hope (with Nick Kinsella QPM) to get a contract to write a book on Modern Slavery: currently with one publisher; discussions ongoing with second; first will publish an article if they will not publish a book.

The work on the Encyclopedia, including quarterly updates, continues without breaks.

I along with Philip Leith (Prof. QUB) and Margaret Leahy (TCD) put in a bid to Leverhulme and Nuffield for a project on disability in employment. We got through the first stages but were rejected.

I am a member of a group which has researched comparative marking across four Universities in England. We secured funds from the UKCLE, the United Kingdom Centre for Legal Education, Warwick. Publication was in Dec. 2005. We presented the findings at the Learning in Law Initiative Conference in January 2005 at Warwick and at the Association of Law Teachers Conference in Edinburgh in March 2005. We have given roadshows on our material at the then Glamorgan University (for all south Wales law schools) and at Bradford

University (for all northern Law schools). Articles on assessment will be spun off.

I continue researching on Corporate Criminal Liability.

Human Resources Management. In the long term I would hope to write a book with a HRM specialist

I continue research on Trade Secrets and Restraint of Trade e.g. spin off several articles too and keep writing on new developments

I research on EU dirigiste social policies versus UK deregulatory ones. Part of this will become a book, and the issue underlies my employment law teaching.

OTHER INFORMATION

I have attended numerous conferences e.g. on Admissions (multiple occasions), Association of Law Teachers (multiple times), Society of Legal Scholars (multiple times), Socio-Legal Studies Association (multiple times), Citizenship, ACAS Employment Law series, the Employment Rights Act 1998, Work & Justice, Justice, Discrimination, History of Criminal Law, Individualisation of Contracts of Employment, Maintaining Quality with a Diminishing Resource, Restraints on Trade, Legal Competencies, Future of Legal Education, Time Management, European Citizenship, Copyright, Fair and Effective Selection, and for some years six-eight talks per annum at the Industrial Law Society's branches in Leeds and Sheffield. Among major conferences were Theatre Workshop on equality and diversity at the University of Sheffield, the HEA Annual Conference (Nottingham University) and the Association of University Administrators' Annual Conference (QUB), the British Academy sponsored seminar on the Industrial Relations Act 1971 (Middlesex University). I am ever seeking to expand my computer skills.

REVIEW

A. Teaching

1. Fairly flexible as to subjects I can teach (e.g. two years taught contract and tort at degree level for the first time - to law for social scientist students - and taught them company law (to accountancy bodies' e.g. ICAEW, ACCA, exemption level) which I have not previously studied). I teach, I think, on more courses than anyone else in the Department. I also stood in for the Pro-Vice-Chancellor in his subject when he is away, and I was a Legal Methods assessor. I taught a significant amount of time in another Faculty, the sole member of the Department to be so involved at a time. I took on Employment Law at short notice at Sheffield and indeed when the lecturer left without giving notice, at Manchester.
2. One of the members of the Department with most experience of teaching postgraduate students, both PGT and PGR
3. Wide experience of undergraduate research projects and PGT dissertations. I have supervised on the legal services course, a project which involved liaison with outside agencies.
4. Use of slides, videos, and outside speakers (e.g. magistrates' clerk, Police Federation).
5. Contact with professional teaching bodies, namely, Bar Standards Board, the Law Society and the Solicitors Regulation Authority, the Institute of Legal Executives, the Institute of Indirect Taxation, Central Law Training and National Law Tutors.
6. Served on Committee planning University College of the Dearne Valley (Humanities Sub-Group).
7. Enjoy writing for students e.g. in Student Law Review, handouts on cases to accompany lectures.
8. I have taught on the Legal Practice Course. Teaching was through workshops, an innovation in this Faculty. I continue to moderate the exams.
9. Have done revision courses for individual students.
10. Nominated 'excellent' lecturer by Business Studies Students.
11. Taught international students at English Language Training Centre's Summer School.
12. Use of seminar format (up to 20 students) in Employment Law with oral presentations delivered by students.
13. Joint and sole teaching on MA in Socio-Legal Studies and MA in Biotechnology, Law and Ethics.

14. Praise by HEFCE's Teaching Quality Assessor (Prof. Bloy) for use of diagrams and flowcharts, praising participants, and involvement of students.

For student feedback on current courses, please refer to evaluation questionnaire; overall I seem to be one of the better teachers.

B. Administration

1. Wide experience of jobs up to Course Leader level - see C.V.above.
2. I have substantial experience of undergraduate home and overseas admissions in this and my previous jobs. I was complimented by the then Vice-Chancellor on realising quotas and increasing the A-level points score. This work was arduous and time-consuming: vacations did not exist!
3. Though only at Sheffield for a short time, I was on U.C.D.V. Humanities sub-group (Dearne Valley). Drafted "Management Studies" course bid (with Dr P Marshall of the Management School).

C. Research

In law books are the main result of research.

1. Book published on Employment Law. Has flow charts in it and is highly structured for student use: innovative use of tear-out summaries, tables, algorithms. The research includes substantial sections on theoretical matters and EC law. Publishers entreat me to do more books for them. Developments are researched and incorporated into the text.
2. Have brought into University work of commenting on Criminal Law for the 'Journal of Financial Crime' 'Law Teacher' and Conflict of Laws for the 'Student Law Review'. Sole person on the department to have regular columns. Research includes research on new points of law.
3. Wrote book on Criminal Law, a "foundation" subject. The fifth edition had a Chinese version. Same publishers wish me to write another book for them. I used to do the table of contents, cases and statutes as well as proof-reading. Research included examining developments in law reform. I have an attached website: see www.booksites.net/fsls and www.mylawchamber
4. Book published on restraint of trade. The research involved a substantial amount of Commonwealth material and there is a good deal of US authority. This book demonstrated my commitment to comparative research. It involved work on new areas e.g. "garden leaves" and confidentiality.
5. I have written a book on "Employment Rights". This work compares the law in 1979 with that at present.
6. In 1998 a student text "Employment Law" was published by the training arm of the Institute of Legal Executives.

D. Standing in Profession

Chair, 2004-5, of the Association of Law Teachers (includes organising the Upjohn lecture [Prof. Linda Mulcahy on adversarialism in law] and the Annual Conference and chairing Committee meetings)

In 1996 I was shortlisted for a Chair at Liverpool John Moores University, their sole professorship revived after a decade. I was the runner-up. Feedback from the Dean includes "I ... thought you personally and your application had many fine qualities". 31 applied and the shortlist consisted of three persons.

I act as External Examiner at other Universities, currently City University Hong Kong.. Previous ones include UEA (undergrad. and postgrad.), Nottingham Trent (postgraduate course) and Huddersfield (undergraduate course), Sheffield Hallam (undergrad.), BPP Law School (postgrad.). I have had to turn down six (!) External Examinerships in one year because of my other commitments.

Previously Recent Legal Developments Editor of the Law Teacher, a national refereed journal, with responsibility for some 90 pages per year.

I write for professional journals: e.g. Solicitors' Journal, New Law Journal, Company Lawyer. Dissemination I regard as a fundamental part of our job.

Have lectured solicitors and articled clerks/trainees as well as postgraduate students.

I regularly referee articles for journals including the Modern Law Review and the Law Teacher.

I continue to referee proposals for books for four London/Oxford/Cambridge publishers.

Requests to review books e.g. from Oxford University Press indicate status.

My 'Criminal Law' book has achieved the status of a leading text and has been adopted as the sole recommended text at some universities.

I have spoken to Law Librarians and have been on a panel appointing a Law Librarian.

I examined for the Law Society and marked for the Institute of Legal Executives. I set exams and marked them for the Institute of Indirect Taxation. I currently examine for CIPD on the new Advanced Certificate in Employment Law (Continuous Assessment route).

I regularly deliver papers at professional and academic symposia.

I have acted without reward on behalf of colleagues (both in Law and elsewhere), students, shop stewards and employees, plus consultancy for an engineering firm.

Have been on Appointment Panels for both law and management lecturers as well as admin. support staff. I was the External on a panel appointing a professor at a West Midlands University: was a current member of staff worthy of a Chair?

Part of my "Criminal Law" book has been selected for inclusion in the British National Corpus.

My work for the "Journal of Financial Crime" was called "excellent" by the editor and my Criminal Law book "splendid" by Professor James Harris of Oxford University.

I acted as a referee for the ESRC on a proposal for a grant of £2½M for a Centre on globalisation.

I am a contributory editor of the 4 volume "Sweet & Maxwell's Encyclopedia of Employment Law" (updates several times per year). I have taken over the sections written by Bob Hepple, Master of Clare College.

I have been invited to write a book for personnel managers.

I have been involved with revalidations. My latest ones have included Derby (LLM in Commercial Law) and Surrey (CIPD Advanced Certificate in Employment Law Continuous Assessment route leading to the LLM in Employment Law) in 2006 and Northampton (all courses, undergrad. and postgrad.). My latest ones include Cardiff's LLBs, Sheffield Hallam's LLM in Global Commercial Law (2015), BPP Law School's new LLM and LLB modules (twice in 2015 and once in 2016), Anglia Ruskin University's establishment of a London base for its Law degree (2015), and the University of Bolton's Internal Subject Review of Law (2016). The last recent one was at the University of Gloucestershire (2018).

My most recent PhD external examinerships are mentioned above.

All these indicate that I am a figure of national standing with external recognition. My books sell well abroad, demonstrating an international repute.
